

David Anderson - Originally trained as a Philosopher, I have spent most of my professional life as a Computer Scientist and Historian of Computing, I currently specialise in Digital Preservation. I have managed numerous projects including, most recently, the European Commission KEEP project, and the JISC, POCOS project. I am a member of the Arts and Humanities Research Council Peer Review College and I am a project reviewer for JISC. In addition I served on the European Commission Expert Advisory Panel on European Industrial Leadership in ICT (2011), and the European Commission Expert Advisory Panel on Preservation Planning (2011). I have held numerous committee memberships within Humanities Computing including serving on the IEEE History of Computing Editorial Board, and Chair (and previously Vice Chair) of the International Federation of Information Processing (IFIP) Working Group 9.7 (History of Computing). I am the Editor of New Review of Information Networking (Taylor & Francis).
